

Iorio Arena & Foxboro Sports Center Join Forces

Will Present Premier Hockey Tournaments to the Area

(9/24/08) – Rob Barletta, general manager of the Iorio Arena in Walpole, Mass., and Scott Harlow, general manager of the Foxboro Sports Center in Foxboro, Mass., have teamed up to present hockey tournaments that use the resources of both arenas. “This new arrangement allows us to take advantage of the synergy created by combining our facilities’ individual resources to hold top-notch hockey tournaments,” Harlow said. “Since the arenas are located just eight miles apart, holding tournaments that utilize both arenas opens up a lot of possibilities regarding the types of events we can host. We aim to benefit local players by offering great competitive events nearby, as well as draw players from across New England looking for tournaments at the best facilities.”

Both Iorio Arena and Foxboro Sports Center boast twin ice sheets, fully loaded pro shops, state-of-the-art workout facilities, multiple locker rooms, and full-service cafes. Foxboro Sports Center also has a synthetic-ice practice room and Grand Mezzanine that can accommodate large functions or business meetings. Both arenas are well-regarded for their fun and family-friendly atmosphere.

“From a business perspective, it makes sense to work with a premier operation like that in Foxboro, which offers both a convenient location and great amenities,” Barletta said. “By bringing together the advantages of Iorio with those of the Foxboro Sports Center we are confident we’ll be able to present some of the best tournaments in the state – events that will be enjoyed by both players and their families.”

More information about the Iorio Arena and the Foxboro Sports Center is available here and at www.foxborosportscenter.com.